Policy Statement

While the overall responsibility for resident education lies with the USF College of Medicine, the residents themselves have the responsibility to participate in a fashion appropriate to that of a competent, compassionate, and skilled physician-in-training.

To assist each resident in the development of his/her personal program of learning, he/she should:

- Provide, at least annually, appropriate feedback through an anonymous program and faculty evaluation process.
- Comply with appropriate COM policies and/or requirements on leave of absence, grievance and appeal, licensure and certification requirements, resident contract, completion of benefit forms as appropriate, and attire.
- Ensure that beepers and equipment are maintained and returned as appropriate.
- Comply with the requirement that USF Photo ID be worn at all times.
- Comply with appropriate institutional policies on drug testing, attire, meals and sleeping facilities, and support services, including medical record completion and ordering of lab and x-ray services.
- Comply with institutional and facility requirements regarding occupational health and employment related injuries.
- Accept responsibility for developing, in conjunction with the program faculty, a personal program of learning to provide safe, effective patient care.
- Participate in the educational and scholarly activities of the program.
- Take the opportunity to teach other residents and/or students.
- Participate on institutional committees and medical staff activities as assigned.
