

“Bath Salts, Not for Human Consumption (or bathing either!)”

*Kenneth E. Ferslew, PhD, DABFT
Section of Toxicology, William L. Jenkins Forensic Center
Quillen College of Medicine
East Tennessee State University*

Friday, April 12, 2013

12:00 – 1:00 pm

*Samuel P. Bell, III Auditorium (room #1023A)
USF College of Public Health*

Kenneth E. Ferslew received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from the University of Florida. His Bachelor's degree is in Agriculture and his Master's degree is in Veterinary Science - Toxicology. He continued his education in Toxicology at Louisiana State University Medical Center in Shreveport, Louisiana where he received his Ph.D. degree in Pharmacology and Toxicology. He is currently the Director of the Section of Toxicology in the Department of Biomedical Sciences. He practices Forensic Toxicology through Quillen East Tennessee State University Physicians and is part of the William L. Jenkins Forensic Center, Mountain Home, Tennessee. Dr. Ferslew's areas of research are forensic toxicology, pharmacokinetics, drugs of abuse, and toxicity assessment. He teaches pharmacology and toxicology to medical students, graduate students, interns, and residents.